Administrative History

In 1912, a professional organization for Home Economists began as a Home Economics Section of the Indiana State Teacher's Association. In 1922, it became affiliated with the American Home Economics Association and was renamed Indiana State Home Economics Association. Sections of the association included: Home Economists in Business (organized in 1945 in Indianapolis, Indiana) and Home Economists in Homemaking (organized in 1923). In 1954, the organization became known as the Indiana Home Economics Association but still retained an affiliation with the Indiana State Teacher's Association. Indiana was divided into 9 districts in 1972. In 1994, the name was changed to Indiana Association of Family and Consumer Sciences, a state affiliate of the American Association of Family and Consumer Sciences.

On January 17, 1913, the Indiana Home Economics Association was organized and consisted of wives and daughters of farmers interested in home economics. Virginia Claypool Meredith was chosen as the first president. The organization was involved in helping Purdue University (West Lafayette, Indiana) gain a new Home Economics building in 1921. As of 1936, it was largely made up of clubs organized to carry out the projects of the Purdue Extension Division. The Indiana Home Economics Association was renamed the Indiana Home Demonstration Association in 1951. It then became the Indiana Extension Homemakers Association, Inc. in 1966 and withdrew from the national organization in 1994. They celebrated their 100th anniversary with a commemorative pin, a book entitled, "Our History: 100 Years of IEHA", and a song written by Ted Arthur, "Love is Home".

Homemakers were invited to the first spring meeting in 1923. The constitution was adopted the same year and included a Homemakers Section. Four years later the group also became part of the American Home Economics Association. Group membership for Home Economists in Homemaking continued until 1969 when the American Home Economics Association allowed for individual memberships, thus terminating group membership. Home Economics in Homemaking continued as a professional Section of the American Home Economics Association and the Indiana Home Economics Association as of 1970.

The Evansville Home Economics in Homemaking formed in 1955, the first in Indiana. As of 1970 there were four groups, including: Evansville, Indianapolis north, Indianapolis south, and Terre Haute. In 1989, members changed the name to Home Economists in Home and Community.

The Indianapolis Home Economists in Homemaking Group became an affiliate of the American Home Economics Association and the Indiana Home Economics Association in 1962. It changed its name to the Home Economists' Guild of Indianapolis in 1978 and is now an affiliate of the Indiana Association of Family and Consumer Sciences. The national name was later changed to Home Economists in Home and Community.
